NEWARK THEATRES.

THEATRE-GEARS are to again have the pleasure of enjoying the melodies and laugh at the mix-ups of the merry musical play of "Madame Sherry." Miss Lina Abarbanel, assisted by the special company, from the New Amsterdam Theatre, New York, will begin a week's engagement at the Newark Theatre next Monday, announced as the last time Miss Abarbanel will be seen in this play in Newark. Miss Abarbanel, as star and prima donna, will head a powerful cast, which features George A. ## PROCTOR'S THEATRE.

Harry Houdini, the world-famed handcuff king, comes to Proctor's Park Place Theatre during the week of March 18 as the headliner. Interest in his coming engagement will be augmented by reason of the fact that this expert locksmith will challenge any person to produce a lock, handcuffs or any contrivance devised for the purpose of effecting security which he cannot release. Houdini has been a conspicuous figure on the vaudeville boards for the best part of the past decade. His feats have astounded the world and in accomplishing them he has depended merely upon skill and strength. He has "broken jail" from every prison on the two continents where any pretence of security has been made and this he has done without having recourse to trick or subterfuge.

Miss Amelia Stone, with Armand Kalisz, will be seen in a delightful opera entitled "Mon Amour." Others who will contribute to the occasion will include Hooey and Lee, Jarro, the well-known trickster; Deiro, the master acrobat; George Felix and the Barry Girls; the Frey twins, celebrated wrestlers; Harry Richards and Bessie Kyle, the Ballots, European equilibrist and gymnasts and the photo plays.

GAYETY THEATRE.

The Gayety Theatre presents for the first time next Monday matinee one of the best attractions playing the Eastern wheel, "The Belles of the Boulevard Company," strictly an up-to-date burlesque show. Amateur night, Friday, March 25, "The World of Pleasure."

MINER'S THEATRE.

Dinkins of "The High School Girls' Company," which will be the next attraction at Miner's Theatre, beginning Monday with the customary matinee, has set a new standard of excellence in the amusement field. The special features will be that fascinating little entertainer, Dainty Marie, who has been secured at some expense and will positively appear at each performance; and George M. Brown, champion heel and toe Walker of the World. Wrestling Wednesday night. Amateur Friday nights. Next week: "The Girls from Missouri."

Woman's Club of Glen Ridge.

Dr. Henry Turner Bailey lectured on Tuesday, March 5, before the Woman's Club of Glen Ridge, under the direction of the Nature Study Department, on "Mountain Laurel as the National Flower."

Dr. Bailey began the talk of the afternoon with an appeal to his hearers to let nature study become their fad. His earnest desire, he assured them, was that the American people should let it have its proper place, from which business and magazines have to a large extent crowded it.

The cure for her world is the earth, and assurance was given that in spiritual refreshment New Jersey offered a feast. Sentiment in America was declared to be set strongly in favor of beauty in family life, as our parks, boulevards, town plans, home garden and summer vacation play ground plans plainly testify. Year-around schools, with courses of agriculture, gardening, planning of houses and gardens and related subjects were spoken of as an ideal of the future.

The neighborliness of each citizen who makes his garden and lawn as beautiful and attractive as the interior of his home was especially commended; when he lived inside his neighbor lived on the outside—and the monotony of being known simply by street and number was deplored.

In this connection Dr. Bailey strongly urged that each home have its totem, hall mark, or house mark, not a coat of arms borrowed from remote ancestors, which should be given a place on linen, silver, book plate, stained glass and over the fireplace, to the end that gardens without and decorations and properties within shall express our individuality and our ideals.

The national tendency to borrow from the art and customs of other countries was deplored, Van Dyke and Emerson being quoted to show that we must do things ourselves and in our own way, with our own materials, if we would build up a distinctive national art. The materials especially mentioned at our command as offering opportunity for development are steel and concrete.

The wish expressed in this connection was that we should not try to imitate stone structures, but work out new forms suitable to the materials and the purposes for which our buildings are intended.

The skyscraper was mentioned as a thing not to be despised in its architectural possibilities and as an instance that American architects have already met our different problems with success. Dr. Bailey then took up the various motifs which through centuries were unconsciously selected and worked over and over by nations which developed their art and architecture, mentioning the lotus of Egypt, which gradually assumed the first place in all their art and architecture; the euthymion of the Greeks by their how they loved the simple form they through centuries modified and developed it to suit their materials and necessities of construction; the acanthus leaf and its influence and place in Roman art, the trefoil, quatrefoil, the five-lobed ivy and the dog tooth in Gothic architecture; all showing how each nation took the thing it liked best and worked upon it until it assumed forms of beauty and produced its own style in architecture and art. All this led to the question: Have we any floral material which is peculiarly appropriate to our needs, considering our greatly varied climate? Various flowers which have been from time to time suggested and urged for adoption as the national flower were discussed, as the goldenrod, columbine and Indian corn. The objections to these flowers were given and the suitability of the mountain laurel then urged. Dr. Bailey made free use of the blackboard, in this most fascinating part of his lecture, to show how marvellously adaptable the bud, flower and leaf of the mountain laurel are to the necessities of our daily life; to the decoration of our homes, as to furniture, fixtures, utensils, fabrics, including hanging, wallpapers and tapestries; to architecture in the development of capitals, borders and friezes, showing especially how the designs can be made to conform to the necessities of concrete construction.

Many interesting sketches were made showing the possibilities in the various conventionalized shapes of the bud, the flower, the pod leaf after the fall of the flower, the groups of flowers and leaves and buds—the leaf used in its prime as a motif, having curves which have been used in all art and arts from early times; the leaf after it has been touched by the frost and has assumed the beautiful twisted form of this stage of its life.

Besides all this the fact that the mountain laurel is evergreen was urged as a claim, the fact that leaves and flowers must form the construction of the plant and always go together; that the foliage turns a beautiful bronze and twists when dying, into interesting and beautiful shapes; that the flowers never wither, but simply fall off; the unique method of fertilization making it independent in its propagation; the beauty and mass of its color the hardness of its growth; the adaptability of its leaves to all forms of decoration and the historic precedent for the use of the leaves in wreaths for all kinds of solemn and notable occasions, were among the many added reasons why we should choose the mountain laurel as our national flower.

The objection that it does not grow in all the States is met by the statement that no more the eagle nests in all States. The objection that it is poisonous to growing herbs seems not to be too well founded, and is met by the statement that liberty is also harmful to those who do not know how to use it.

The final summing up of the fitness of the mountain laurel included the necessary qualifications that it has never been the emblem of any other nation, and mention of the fact that we, too, have historical association with it, for when George Washington went to New York for his first inauguration, Trenton made the old bridge there over which he rode a bower of laurel.

Newark Industrial Exposition.

Newark is to hold a great industrial exposition under the auspices of the Board of Trade, May 15 to 25, to accelerate the industrial commercial and educational interests of the city. "Do it for Newark!" is the spirit that dominates all of the elaborate preparations made for this big civic undertaking. Displays will be made in the First Regimental Armory and grounds, the building being one of the largest and best adapted to exhibition purposes in the United States.

It is claimed that one hundred thousand different articles are manufactured in the three thousand shops of the Newark industrial district, the diversity being proportionately greater than that of any other manufacturing district in the country. Not only will the products of Newark's factories be shown, but also the processes of manufacture. There will be many special features of an entertaining and educational nature, including a series of lectures on the industrial developments and opportunities of Greater Newark. The committee announces that through the medium of the exposition it wishes to draw the attention of the nation to the fact that Newark is now the fourteenth city of the country in population and the eleventh in manufacturing, and that it is enjoying a period of greater prosperity than ever before in its history.

The Roosevelt Boom.

The National Roosevelt Committee, which is booming the candidacy of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt for the Republican party nomination for the Presidency, has issued a circular letter saying that developments in the field of politics have come thick and fast in the last week, and every day, has shown a decided growth in the sentiment for the nomination and election of Colonel Roosevelt. From every section assurances have been sent to the Roosevelt headquarters in Washington reiterating the strength of Colonel Roosevelt. In the very States where Mr. Taft's managers have made their strongest claims, it has been demonstrated that the undercurrent of Roosevelt sentiment is fast proving too strong to be coped with by the administration.

WHERE DOCTORS FAILED TO HELP

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Mrs. Green's Health—Her Own Statement.

Covington, Mo.—"Your medicine has done me more good than all the doctors' medicines. At every monthly period I had to stay in bed four days because of hemorrhages, and my back was so weak I could hardly walk. I have been taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and now I can stay up and do my work. I think it is the best medicine on earth for women."

How Mrs. Cline Avoided Operation.

Brownsville, Ind.—"I can say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me more good than anything else. One doctor said I must be operated upon for a serious female trouble and that nothing could help me but an operation."

"I had hemorrhages and at times could not get any medicine to stop them. I got in such a weak condition that I would have died if I had not got relief soon. Several women who had taken your Compound, told me to try it and I did and found it to be the right medicine to build up the system and overcome female troubles."

"I am now in great deal better health than I ever expected to be, so I think I ought to thank you for it."—Mrs. O. M. CLINE, S. Main St., Brownsville, Ind.
